HOUSE RUSHES ACTION ON TAX BILL

SEE EARLY PASSAGE OF BUDGET MEASURE TO SWELL REVENUE

Majority Is Working Smoothly After
Plea Of Garner

WASHINGTON, March 30.—The new budget-balancing tax bill was pushed forward in the house today with such vigor that its passage before tomorrow night seemed possible.

Discordant forces which a few days ago shouted down and voted down their leaders were massed in a smooth organization to complete adoption of a substitute program for the $500,000,000 general sales tax. Including the higher income and estate taxes previously adopted, the measure will add $1,000,000,000 to the government's revenues next year.

Two items in the new program seemed likely to cause some dissension—the one-fourth of one per cent tax on stock exchange transactions and the increase of letter postage to three cents.

However, the dramatic "balance the budget" battle cry sounded yesterday by Speaker Garner appeared to have lined up a majority sufficient to pass even these taxes.

The house seemed determined to make all possible speed to assure frightened bankers and investors, domestic and foreign, that the budget would be balanced. After Garner's rallying cry, it began to adopt the new taxes faster than clerks could draft them in the requisite legal language. In swift succession, the house accepted these special sales taxes:

- Three per cent on pleasure automobiles; two per cent on trucks; one per cent on accessories;
- Five per cent on radios, phonographs, candy and chewing gum;
- Ten per cent on cosmetics, furs, jewelry, sporting goods, cameras, yachts and motor boats;
- Four cents per thousand on matches.

Aside from the stock exchange and postage items, the most important provisions remaining to be acted upon were:

- One-eighth of one per cent on transfer of bonds;
- Ten cents per $100 on capital stock and bond issues;
- Five cents per $100 on sales of produce on exchanges;
- Five per cent sales tax on mechanical refrigerators;
- Reduction of corporation income tax exemption to $1,000;
- New income tax minimum beginning at $6,000 instead of $7,000.

Republicans generally are doubtful about the stock transaction tax and New York forces have vigorously protested it. It was originally suggested by Insurgent Rep. LaGuardia, Rep. N. Y., and some of the leaders insisted that it would drive the stock exchange to Canada. An effort may be made to substitute a tax on electricity for this provision. Republicans yesterday offered such a substitution in the ways and means committee and were voted down. Private polls indicated the house would act similarly.

The increase of letter postage to three cents is the largest single item in the new program. It would raise $135,000,000 a year. Politicians with an eye to re-election always have looked upon postal increases as the most irritating kind of tax.

The general tone of the house, however, is apparently strong enough to overcome these objections. Even LaGuardia and his co-leader in the sales tax rebellion, Rep. Doughton Dem., N. C., are agreed that the best thing the house can do is to get rid of the tax bill.

Automobile interests have indicated they will make a strong effort to have the senate remove the automobile sales tax. This was adopted by the house after brief protests from Michigan members. Amendments proposing to lighten the tax were defeated so decisively that a record vote was not even asked.

All preliminary action on the bill may be completed today. The house is technically in committee of the whole, adopting changes in the original bill. When it finishes that work, it will report the completed bill to the house. New votes then will be taken on various sections of the measure. Finally will come the vote on passage of the entire bill.

CAVE-MAN ACTING WINS BRIDE

Blonde Star Weds
Actor In Mexico

Greta Nissen

HOLLYWOOD, March 30.—Marriage in Tia Juana, Mexico today will culminate a romance of the films, in which the cave-man acting of a screen player won the real affections of Greta Nissen, Norwegian star.

The bridegroom will be Welton Heyburn Franks, actor known to the screen as Welton Heyburn. They met in a picture which called for Heyburn to choke Miss Nissen.

At the first rehearsal of the choking, according to the bride-to-be, so kindly did Franks pretend to throttle her that affection developed.

They plan to fly to Tia Juana, be married, and then return to Santa Monica, postponing a wedding trip until pictures in which they are working have been completed.

Miss Nissen, whose legal name is Grethe Rutz-Nissen, has had many prominent parts in pictures. She was born in Oslo, Norway.

ROOSEVELT CLAIMS IOWA'S DELEGATES AFTER CONVENTION

Turbulent Session Precedes Vote; Group Anti-Dry

DAVENPORT, Iowa, March 30.—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York today added Iowa's twenty-six delegates to the list of those supporting his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The Roosevelt endorsement came after a turbulent state convention which also adopted a resolution favoring submission of a state option prohibition amendment to the states through constitutional conventions.

Considerable sentiment for an uncommitted delegation was present in the convention and opponents of the New York executive charged Iowa had been "railroaded" into the column of central west states including Minnesota and North Dakota already supporting him.

Supporters of Gov. William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray of Oklahoma were few and no active campaign was waged among the delegates for the fiery southwest leader.

After Roosevelt had been named, a motion was made to designate Murray as second choice of Iowa delegates at the Chicago convention. The motion failed for lack of a second.

The prohibition amendment brought little discussion and was adopted almost unanimously.

"The Democratic party of Iowa recognizes an increasing demand for the submission of an amendment to the federal constitution repealing or modifying the prohibition amendment. In accord with Democratic principles we pledge our representatives in congress to vote for the submission to state constitutional conventions, rather than to legislatures of the several states of an amendment enabling the states to determine what their policy shall be."

FLYER IS KILLED

LEXINGTON, Ky., March 30.—Marion Stanley, 20, son of former U. S. Senator and former Governor A. O. Stanley, was injured fatally late yesterday at the municipal airport here when an airplane in which he was making his second solo flight, crashed from a height of about 125 feet. Stanley was a student at the University of Kentucky.

MOVEMENT TO FORCE PAYMENT OF CLAIMS OF VETERANS GAINS

President Warns Of
Danger But Plan
Gains Support

WASHINGTON, March 30.—The warning of President Hoover against full payment of veterans' compensation certificates at an estimated cost of $2,000,000,000 has thrown the full glare of White House disapproval on a project that has been gaining silent strength in congress in defiance of all insistence that the budget be balanced.

Congress is struggling to find $1,000,000,000 in new revenue. At the same time there is shaping up, quietly but with the apparent inevitableness of a juggernaut, a move to distribute twice this sum in cash immediately to World War veterans.

General opinion is that congress will pass this measure if its advocates can force it to a vote. A presidential veto in such a case was definitely forecast by President Hoover's statement. Whether congress could pass the measure by a two-thirds majority over a veto is uncertain.

The project is contained in house bill No. 1, introduced by Rep. Patman, Democrat, Texas, a young man who has been campaigning throughout the country for it. He is an earnest, outspoken person, clean-cut in appearance, looking rather more like a young banker than a legislator who is throwing fear into most bankers of the country.

The argument against Patman's proposal is chiefly that the government cannot spend $2,000,000,000 when it is already piling up a huge deficit.

The argument for the bill as summarized by Patman to the United Press is as follows:

As to the expense involved: "The payment can be made without unbalancing the budget, without a bond issue and without increasing interest payments by the government. The President said nothing about unbalancing the budget when he gave Mellon, Morgan and other bankers $2,000,000,000 through the reconstruction finance corporation or when persuading congress to grant a moratorium to foreign countries."

As to where the money would come from:

"The government has reduced the national debt $3,500,000,000 more than was required by law," Patman said. "Therefore the government could pay the adjusted certificates in full and still not owe more than congress contemplated it should under the schedule for retirement of the national debt."

Patman said that the gold reserve was sufficient to permit issuance of $2,000,000,000 in United States notes which require only 40 per cent gold backing. This, he argued, would eliminate payment of interest which would be involved in a bond issue. Furthermore, Patman contended, final payment of the adjusted service certificates would permit practical abolition of a large government bureau, which in itself would save millions of dollars.

"Public welfare would be promoted by such a move," Patman continued. "If the volume of money is increased, commodity values will rise. Farmers will get a better price for their products. Their increased purchasing power will put increased labor at work. This is one way that currency can be inflated by placing money in every nook and corner of America—not by paying a debt or a bonus, but by paying a debt."

On the ground of justice to the veterans, Patman's argument is that congress has previously acknowledged the debt and that his proposal is merely to pay it off now instead of years later.

FOUR ENDANGERED BY DYNAMITE BLAST

CANTON, O., March 30.—The lives of four persons were endangered and houses were jarred by the explosion of a dynamite bomb at the home of Earl Schiffer, 40, former state prohibition agent, early today.

Schiffer, his wife and their two daughters were in the living room of the house when the bomb exploded. They were uninjured. The bomb was thrown against the foundation of the house, and all windows on one side were broken.

No reason for the bombing was given by Schiffer.

MAN WHO CONFESSED CRIME FOR ANOTHER MAY OBTAIN PARDON

Accepts Jail Term To Save Family Of
Guilty One

CHEYENNE, Wyo., March 30.—A 24-year-old lumberman who confessed a crime he did not commit to save the father of a family from going to jail, neared freedom today by means of a governor's pardon.

Archie Johnson, the young lumberman, took the father and his wife and children into his cabin last year when they appeared there, seeking shelter.

The father was sick and jobless. Johnson nursed him back to health, fed the family, and sought employment for the father.

Then just as the father might have gained employment, forest officers arrived at the little cabin near Laramie and accused him of stealing a barrel of gasoline.

Johnson interrupted their accusations and confessed the crime. He was sentenced to jail, and the family deprived of its breadwinner.

He was sentenced to six months in jail, and fined $100. Sheriff George Carroll became interested in the young lumberman, and Johnson revealed the story.

He has now served all but a few days of the sentence, but his fine remains to be paid.

Today, Governor Clark was reported as favoring the pardon as a partial recompense to Johnson for the unselfish act that cost him six months of liberty.

TRAIN SETS RECORD TIME AT 80 M. P. H.

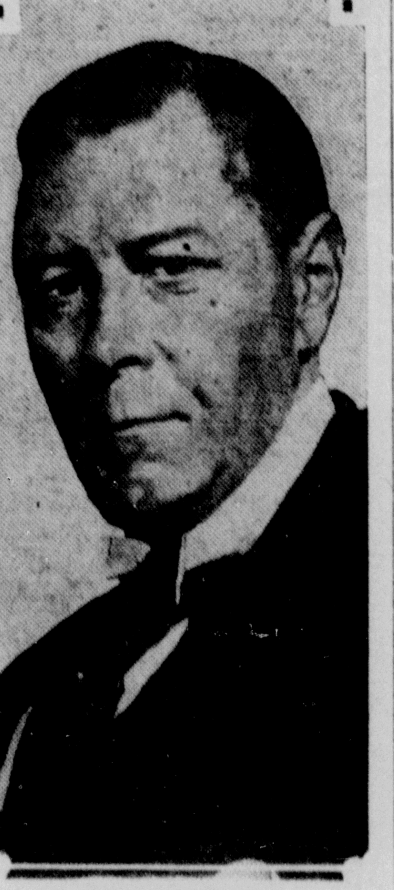

COLUMBUS, O., March 30.—The fastest railroad trip between Columbus and Cleveland was recorded Easter Sunday by the Ohio State Limited of the Big Four Railroad, it was revealed today.

NEGOTIATORS WILL CONTINUE EFFORTS TO RESTORE INFANT

Design Requests Help;
Hostage Plot Is
Probed

NORFOLK, Va., March 30.—Norfolk negotiators continued their hunt for the kidnapped son of the Lindberghs today at the request of Colonel Lindbergh, made personally by him, according to the Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock.

This word brought back from Hopewell, N. J., and relayed by the minister to newspapermen, encouraged hope that the child stolen from his nursery at Hopewell twenty-nine days ago was alive and well somewhere near Norfolk.

Public interest centered in reports that a conference was to be held at sea, with negotiators for Colonel Lindbergh meeting men claiming to have the Lindbergh baby.

Reports from Baltimore quoted Mrs. Charles H. Consolvo as saying "one of the three Norfolk men" had asked her husband, millionaire hotel man and owner of the trim yacht Maroon, to take them on a trip "beyond the twelve-mile limit."

But Colonel Consolvo denied reports his yacht had taken on supplies and fuel, ready to sail at a moment's notice, so the report was discounted. The Maroon, he said, is on blocks in John R. Curtis' shipyard, covered with tarpaulins.

Curtis is one of the three local negotiators for Lindbergh. The others are Dean H. Dobson-Peacock and Rear Admiral Guy Burrage.

Dean Dobson-Peacock announced yesterday, after his return from a conference with Lindbergh at Hopewell, that the group had been asked to continue its efforts to bring about the return of the baby.

The dean was asked if he carried any object to Hopewell by which Lindbergh might identify his son. He replied:

"I took certain information."

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 30.—Increased activity about the Lindberghs' Soudan Mountain estate, state police headquarters in the kidnapping investigation, was noticed overnight.

The ten state troopers stationed at the home during the day stayed at their posts all night instead of going to their temporary quarters at Skillman, nearby.

A negro ex-convict, released from an Illinois prison told officers the story. His name was withheld.

The man was questioned for three hours and narcotic officers were called to determine whether he was under the influence of drugs.

"Our informant told us," Claude M. Crooks, assistant U. S. district attorney said, "that because of the widespread publicity caused by the case, the kidnapping was carried out longer than expected."

"The man said it was not the intention of the kidnapers to seek ransom money."

"It was the intention of the kidnapers, according to the Negro, to kidnap the grandchildren of President Hoover to assure success."

STUDENTS ELECT

DELAWARE, O., March 30.—In the annual student elections here, Clayton Herrick, Turner Falls, Mass., today had been chosen president of the Ohio Wesleyan University student body. He defeated James Williams, Youngstown.

FINAL DECISION IS WITHHELD PENDING VERDICT ON SAFETY

Construction Safe
Contractor Will
Resume Work

The suggestion that an impartial test be made to determine the safe or unsafe construction of the load-bearing walls of the partly completed $180,000 centralized school building in Beavercreek Twp. is made in a compromise partial decision handed down Tuesday by the second district Court of Appeals in the taxpayer's injunction suit against The W. H. Howard Construction Co., Columbus, general contractor for the project.

If the result of the proposed test convinces the appellate court the building is being constructed in a safe manner, the contractor will be authorized to resume work on the structure without razing of any walls.

Should the test indicate the walls to be defective, the contractor will be required to tear them down, the extent of the reconstruction to be decided later after a report of the examination is made.

Under terms of the appellate court ruling, the contractor is left no alternative but to agree to the test, the decision adding: "If, for any reason, the contractor will not conform to the test we have suggested, it may be decreed that all the load-bearing walls be torn down to the third course of cement block or load-bearing tile below the course upon which the steel joists rest and that the wall be built from there up of a good quality of common brick."

The appeals court also announced it will confer with counsel for both parties to the case as to further proceedings. The date assigned for this conference, which will be held at Columbus, is Wednesday, April 6.

Before arriving at the conclusion reached, the three appeals court judges, Albert H. Kunkle, Springfield; Roscoe G. Hornbeck, London, and James I. Alford, Columbus, personally examined the building, twice. The two inspections, the judges said they are of the opinion that the "walls do not appear unsafe by reason of the use of cinder block at any place unless it would be where the joists rest upon them," and further that "they are not unsafe there if the voids in the blocks at the place where the bearing of the joists rest have been filled to the level of the top of the block with cement."

In all instances where the joists have been installed and the work completed, the joists are covered and, according to the judges, there is no certain way to determine whether the cinder blocks have been filled with cement. Testimony on this point conflicted at the trial of the suit.

In reference to the fact a section of the unsupported front wall collapsed some weeks ago during a windstorm, the judges assert that their examination of the wall which was blown down, disclosed that "insofar as we can see, the voids were filled, but it is impossible to tell definitely whether this has been done in all places unless the walls were razed and the joists removed."

Declaring they entertain no personal opinion independent of the record on the comparative strength of brick and cement block in load-bearing walls, the judges say it is an indisputable fact that the status of Ohio accepts cinder block walls as capable of bearing a load such as will fall upon the walls under consideration.

E. W. Brill, chief of division of workshops and inspection of Ohio, whose duty it is to inspect all public buildings to determine their safety from a structural and sanitary standpoint, testified during the trial that the walls in the Beaver school are safe and are being built according to the general code of Ohio. He based this on personal observation as well as a written report of George D. Richardson, architect and inspector of his department.

Demolition of the walls already built is a step that the higher court declares should be avoided if in any other manner the safety of the wall can be determined.

In view of the fact the taxpayers do not question the good faith of the contractor, do not charge him with fraud or of collusion with

CLAIRE WINDSOR IS SUED FOR $100,000

OAKLAND, Calif., March 30.—Claire Windsor, blonde actress and screen actress, was accused of disrupting a wealthy broker's home today in a $100,000 alienation of affections suit brought by Mrs. Marion Y. Read, 25, Oakland, housewife.

Mrs. Read, who last week filed a divorce suit against Alfred C. Read, Jr., head of a San Francisco brokerage firm, charged Miss Windsor and her husband were "running around together."

Read, 26, and Miss Windsor met last September, the wife's suit said. Since then, she added, the actress "entered into a course of action calculated to alienate Read's affections from his wife."

Mrs. Read did not give any details in her complaint.

Informed of reports that Miss Windsor probably was in no position to pay $100,000, Mrs. Read remarked "It's just too bad for her."

Miss Windsor is appearing in Los Angeles in Al Jolson's "Wonder Bar."

MOVEMENT TO FORCE PAYMENT OF CLAIMS OF VETERANS GAINS

President Warns Of
Danger But Plan
Gains Support

WASHINGTON, March 30.—The warning of President Hoover against full payment of veterans' compensation certificates at an estimated cost of $2,000,000,000 has thrown the full glare of White House disapproval on a project that has been gaining silent strength in congress in defiance of all insistence that the budget be balanced.

Congress is struggling to find $1,000,000,000 in new revenue. At the same time there is shaping up, quietly but with the apparent inevitableness of a juggernaut, a move to distribute twice this sum in cash immediately to World War veterans.

General opinion is that congress will pass this measure if its advocates can force it to a vote. A presidential veto in such a case was definitely forecast by President Hoover's statement. Whether congress could pass the measure by a two-thirds majority over a veto is uncertain.

The project is contained in house bill No. 1, introduced by Rep. Patman, Democrat, Texas, a young man who has been campaigning throughout the country for it. He is an earnest, outspoken person, clean-cut in appearance, looking rather more like a young banker than a legislator who is throwing fear into most bankers of the country.

The argument against Patman's proposal is chiefly that the government cannot spend $2,000,000,000 when it is already piling up a huge deficit.

The argument for the bill as summarized by Patman to the United Press is as follows:

As to the expense involved: "The payment can be made with out unbalancing the budget, with out a bond issue, without additional taxes and without increasing interest payments by the government. The President said nothing about unbalancing the budget when he gave Mellon, Morgan and other in-laws his $100,000,000 for the reconstruction finance through the reconstruction finance corporation or when persuading congress to grant a moratorium to foreign countries."

As to where the money would come from: "The government has reduced the national debt $3,500,000,000 more than was required by law," Patman said. "Therefore the government could pay the adjustment certificates in full and still not owe more than congress contemplated it should under the schedule for retirement of the national debt."

Patman said that the gold reserve was sufficient to permit issuance of $2,000,000,000 in United States notes which require only 40 per cent gold backing. This, he argued, would eliminate payment of interest which would be involved in a bond issue. Furthermore, Patman contended, final payment of the adjusted service certificates would permit practical abolition of a large government bureau, which in itself would save millions of dollars.

"Public welfare would be promoted by such a move," Patman continued. "If the volume of money is increased, commodity values will rise. Farmers will get a better price for their products. Their increased purchasing power will put factories and labor at work. This is one way that currency can be inflated by doing currency in every nook and corner of America—not by paying a debt or a bonus, but by paying a debt."

On the ground of justice to the veterans, Patman's argument is that congress has previously acknowledged the debt and that his proposal is merely to pay it off now instead of years later.

MAN WHO CONFESSED CRIME FOR ANOTHER MAY OBTAIN PARDON

Accepts Jail Term To Save Family Of Guilty One

CHEYENNE, Wyo., March 29.—A 24-year-old lumberman who confessed a crime he did not commit to save the father of a family from going to jail, neared freedom today by means of a governor's pardon.

Oscar Johnson, the young lumberman, took the father and his wife and children into his cabin last year when they appeared there, seeking shelter.

The father was sick and jobless, fed the family, and sought employment for the father.

Then just as the father might have gained employment, forest officers arrived at the little cabin near Laramie and accused him of stealing a barrel of gasoline.

Johnson interrupted their accusations, and himself confessed the crime that the father might not be sentenced to jail, and the family in Cleveland now, Cannon declared.

On both sides of the statehouse, the plan of procedure calls for adjournment some time Thursday unless unexpected difficulties are encountered.

The house adjourned Tuesday for fifteen minutes after Governor White had read his legislative message at the joint session of the senate and meantime the four bills comprising the governor's legislative program had been introduced, the rules had been suspended to cut parliamentary red tape, and the bills referred to the taxation committee for consideration.

Movement To Demand Salary Cutting Is Launched

COLUMBUS, O., March 30.

—Opposition to diversion of gasoline tax revenues for relief purposes and a movement to demand legislation to reduce salaries of state and local officials and jurists appeared today as the chief obstacles in the path of early approval of Governor George White's program of relief legislation.

The opposition in the general assembly so far is disorganized and without leadership. It might, however, become increasingly formidable if senate and house leaders fail to proceed with their plan to bring the special session to a close not later than Thursday.

Sixty signatures to their petition were claimed by sponsors of the government to ask the governor to include the salary-cutting bill in the legislation to be considered. Most of the signers were rural members of the house, who want the salary-cutting measure enacted by the special session so that it will apply to the salaries of officials elected in November.

The reduction proposed is ten per cent.

Opposition to diversion of the local sub-divisions' share of gasoline tax revenues also is coming from legislators from rural and small communities.

The senate and house taxation committees were continuing today their joint hearing on the bills introduced at the opening session, in accord with the plan to have them ready for final action not later than Thursday.

The two committees spent nearly three hours Tuesday night listening to an explanation of the bills in the governor's program and to speakers who discussed the need for relief legislation and various phases of the proposed legislation.

Major O. C. Braught, chairman of the governor's state relief committee, explained details of the four administration bills and what they would accomplish in the way of providing funds for relief in the local sub-divisions.

Other speakers included A. V. Cannon, Cleveland, chairman of the Cuyahoga County joint relief committee; John Marshall, president of Cleveland city council; Mayor Ray Miller, Cleveland; Charles V. Truax, Bucyrus, former state agriculture director; State Senator W. A. Greenlund, Cleveland; and Mayor Jacob S. Coxey, Massillon.

"Cannon after explaining that he was 'not a welfare worker or an uplifter, but a hard-boiled lawyer who became interested in the terrible conditions existing in Cleveland," told the committee relief must be provided if the needy in Cuyahoga County are to continue to be fed.

More than 100,000 persons are being provided for by relief funds in Cleveland now, Cannon declared. Truax, who said he spoke as a farmer, urged rural members to support the relief program. He urged also that the legislature should provide for a moratorium for farmers and home-owners.

The picturesque Mayor Coxey appealed to the legislature to adopt his proposal to authorize cities to issue fractional bonds, bearing one-tenth of one per cent interest, that could be used as currency in local communities.

The legislative wheels moved with comparative smoothness at the opening session Tuesday and there was every indication that the program of the leaders for an early conclusion of the work would be accomplished.

MYRON TAYLOR BECOMES NEW "CZAR" OF STEEL INDUSTRY

NEGOTIATORS WILL CONTINUE EFFORTS TO RESTORE INFANT

Sign Requests Help;
Hostage Plot Is
Probed

NORFOLK, Va., March 30.—Norfolk negotiators continued their hunt for the kidnapped son of the Lindberghs today "at the request of Colonel Lindbergh, made personally by him," according to the Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock.

This word brought back from Hopewell, N. J., and relayed by the minister to newspapermen, encouraged hope that the child stolen from his nursery at Hopewell twenty-nine days ago was alive and well somewhere near Norfolk.

Public interest centered in reports that a conference was to be held at sea, with negotiators for Colonel Lindbergh meeting men claiming to have the Lindbergh baby.

Reports from Baltimore quoted Mrs. Charles H. Consovo as saying "one of the three Norfolk men" had asked her husband, millionaire hotel man and owner of the trim yacht Marcon, to take them on a trip "beyond the twelve-mile limit."

But Colonel Consovo denied reports his yacht had taken on supplies and fuel, ready to sail at a moment's notice, so the report was discounted. The Marcon, he said, is on blocks in John R. Curtis' shipyard, covered with tarpaulins.

Curtis is one of the three local negotiators for Lindbergh. The others are Dean H. Dobson-Peacock and Rear Admiral Guy B. Burrell.

Dean Dobson-Peacock announced yesterday, after his return from a conference with Lindbergh at Hopewell, that the group had been asked to continue its efforts to bring about the return of the baby.

The dean was asked if he carried any object to Hopewell by which Lindbergh might identify his son. He replied:

"I took certain information."

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 30.—Increased activity about the Lindbergh Sourland Mountain estate, state police headquarters in the kidnapping investigation, was noticed overnight.

NEW YORK, March 30.—Myron C. Taylor has become the czar of the steel industry, the first since the death of Judge Elbert H. Gary in 1927, with assumption of full executive direction as chairman of the board.

Taylor replaces a triumvirate which was set up in charge of the corporation's affairs, following Gary's death. That triumvirate consisted of J. P. Morgan, banker, James A. Farrell, president retiring next month, and Taylor.

Morgan, who has been chairman, relinquished that post yesterday in accordance with an agreement made when he accepted the office in 1927. Taylor, who previously has held the office of chairman of the finance committee, now becomes the directing head of the world's largest industrial enterprise with full title to the authority.

Farrell, on retirement, will be succeeded by William A. Irvin, now a vice president, Irvin will rank next to Taylor, but he will be concerned chiefly with operations.

Morgan assumed the chairmanship in 1927 reluctantly and at the request of his friend, the late Geo. F. Baker, chairman of the First National Bank and the largest individual stockholder in the steel corporation. Morgan will remain a director.

It was through Baker's influence also that Taylor accepted the finance chairmanship. Taylor, a lawyer turned industrialist, directed company policies in cooperation with Farrell. With the Farrell retirement imminent, however, more and more of the executive control was concentrated in Taylor's hands.

CLAIRE WINDSOR IS SUED FOR $100,000

OAKLAND, Calif., March 30.—Claire Windsor, blonde stage and screen actress, was accused of disrupting a wealthy broker's home today in a $100,000 alienation of affections suit brought by Mrs. Marion Y. Read, 25, Oakland, housewife.

Mrs. Read, who last week filed a divorce suit against Alfred C. Read, Jr., head of a San Francisco brokerage firm, charged Miss Windsor and her husband were "running around together."

Read, 26, and Miss Windsor met last September, the wife's suit said. Since then, she added, the actress "entered into a course of alienation calculated to alienate Read's affections from his wife."

Mrs. Read did not give any details in her complaint.

Informal reports that Miss Windsor probably was in no position to pay $100,000, Mrs. Read remarked "it's just too bad for her."

Miss Windsor is appearing in Los Angeles in Al Jolson's "Wonder Bar."

CONDUCT FUNERAL OF FAMED LAWYER

YOUNGSTOWN, March 30.—Leading citizens of the Mahoning valley gathered today at "Trail's End," home of John T. Harrington, for funeral services for the prominent attorney.

Capitalists, business associates, and his friends of the legal fraternity, were here for the ceremony.

Dr. Charles Wishart, president of Wooster College, was to give the funeral oration.

Harrington died February 27 at Sydney, Australia, while on a cruise with his daughter and her friend, Miss Katharine Owsley.

LEAPS TO DEATH

CLEVELAND, O., March 30.—A leap from the eleventh story room of the Hotel Hollenden brought instant death early today to a middle-aged woman, registered as Miss Doris J. Smith, R. F. D. No. 3, of Madison, Wis. The woman, apparently a cripple, had made careful preparations to conceal her identity.

VETERAN ENDS LIFE

CINCINNATI, O., March 30.—A gas mask he used to protect his life in the trenches in France was the device used by Howard K. Boothby, 41, plumber, to end his life here. Boothby put on the mask, fastened one end of a hose to a gas jet and the other to the mask and inhaled the fumes. He had been despondent because of lack of employment, it was said.

FINAL DECISION IS WITHHELD PENDING VERDICT ON SAFETY

Construction Safe
Contractor Will
Resume Work

The suggestion that an impartial test be made to determine the safe or unsafe construction of the load-bearing walls of the partly completed $180,000 centralized school building in Beavercreek Twp. is made in a compromise partial decision handed down Tuesday by the second district Court of Appeals in the taxpayer's injunction suit against The W. H. Howard Construction Co., Columbus, general contractor for the project.

If the result of the proposed test convinces the appellate court the building is being constructed in a safe manner, the contractor will be authorized to resume work on the structure without razing of any walls.

Should the test indicate the walls to be defective, the contractor will be required to tear them down, the extent of the reconstruction to be decided later after a report of the examination is made.

Under terms of the appellate court ruling, the contractor is left no alternative but to agree with the test, the decision adding: "If, for any reason, the contractor will not conform to the test we have suggested, it may be decreed that all the load-bearing walls be torn down to the third course of cement block or load-bearing tile below the course upon which the steel joists rest and that the wall be built from there up of a good quality of common brick."

The appeals court also announced it will confer with counsel for both parties to the case as to further proceedings. The date assigned for this conference, which will be held at Columbus, is Wednesday, April 6.

Before arriving at the conclusion reached, the three appeals court judges, Albert H. Kunkle, Springfield; Roscoe G. Hornbeck, London, and James I. Allread, Columbus, personally examined the building twice, they revealed. Following the two inspections, the judges said they are of the opinion that the "walls do not appear unsafe by reason of the use of cinder block at any place unless it would be where the joists rest upon them," and further that "they are not unsafe there if the voids in the blocks are filled with cement. Testimony on this point conflicted at the trial of the suit."

In reference to the fact a section of the unsupported front wall collapsed some weeks ago during a windstorm, the judges assert that their examination of the wall which was blown down, disclosed that "insofar as we can see, the voids were filled, but it is impossible to tell definitely whether this has been done in all places unless the walls were razed and the joists removed."

Declaring they entertain no personal opinions independent of the record on the comparative strength of brick and cement block in load-bearing walls, the judges say it is an indisputed fact that the state of Ohio accords a load on the walls of cinder block walls as will fall upon the walls under consideration.

E. W. Brill, chief of division of workshops and inspection of Ohio, whose duty it is to inspect all public buildings where the public may assemble to determine their safety from a structural and sanitary viewpoint, testified during the trial that the walls in the Beaver school are safe and are being built according to the general code of Ohio. He based this on personal observation as well as a written report of George D. Richardson, architect and inspector of his department.

Demolition of the walls already built is a step that the higher court declares should be avoided if in any other manner the safety of the building can be determined.

COURT OVERRULES NEW TRIALS HERE FOR MORROW AND MALOTTE

Supplemental motions asking new trials for Ralph Morrow, 38, and A. B. Malotte, 37, Osborn business men, under sentences of from one to seven years each in Ohio penitentiary on convictions for grand larceny in connection with the $619.50 robbery at the Charles Monnett home, south of Yellow Springs, last November 20, were overruled by Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy Tuesday.

The latest motions asking new trials on the ground of newly discovered evidence, were supported by affidavits signed by Mrs. Lewis Liming and her 16-year-old son, Robert Stillwater, in which Mrs. Liming asserts that she testified as a state's witness at the Morrow and Malotte trials after her husband had been promised immunity from prosecution in connection with the robbery in which he was involved.

Lewis Liming, 38, near Osborn, was also sentenced to serve from one to seven years in the penitentiary when he changed his plea to guilty to a grand larceny charge.

Mrs. Liming, in her affidavit, charged that Prosecuting Attorney Marcus McCallister and L. A. Davis, county road patrolman, visited her home after the Monnett robbery and told her that "if she would go on the witness stand and testify for the state, he (the prosecuting attorney) would see to it that her husband was released from the charge and would not have to serve any term for complicity in the robbery."

On the witness stand Mrs. Liming was said to have angrily denied the implication that her testimony had been influenced by a promise of immunity for her husband, but in her signed affidavit she declares that "when asked about these things during the trial she was 'confused' and 'did not understand' the questions put to her by F. L. Johnson, defense counsel."

Reference to the alleged promise of immunity had been made by Attorney Johnson in his original motions for new trials for Morrow and Malotte, but these motions had likewise been overruled by Judge Gowdy before passing sentence on the six men involved in the burglary.

ADITOR NOT ASKED TO EXTEND PERIOD OF FILING RETURNS

County Auditor James J. Curlett said Wednesday he had received no official notice from the state tax commission of an extension of the deadline date for filing personal property tax returns and that an extension in Greene County appears unlikely. Thursday is the final day unless an extension is ordered.

The state tax commission, at the request of Governor White, was reported to have asked all Ohio county auditors Tuesday to extend the time for filing returns from March 31 to April 20.

Need for an extension in Greene County does not exist in the opinion of Auditor Curlett, who declared that more than 6,000 returns have already been made. He estimates that the probably tax delinquency in this county after all returns are in Thursday will not exceed 1 or 2 per cent. Many taxpayers who have not yet filed will not do so in the event they do not own sufficient personal property which would yield taxable amounts, he believes.

Declaring his belief that if a twenty-day extension is ordered, the extension, to be legal, would have to be authorized by the Board of County Commissioners. Auditor Curlett indicated he would not request of commissioners that the final date for filing returns be advanced to April 20. "We are perfectly willing to extend the tax-paying period, however, if ordered to do so," he said.

Supplemental motions asking new trials for Ralph Morrow, 38, and A. B. Malotte, 37, Osborn business men, under sentences of from one to seven years each in Ohio penitentiary on convictions for grand larceny in connection with the $619.50 robbery at the Charles Monnett home, south of Yellow Springs, last November 20, were overruled by Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy Tuesday.

The latest motions asking new trials on the ground of newly discovered evidence, were supported by affidavits signed by Mrs. Lewis Liming and her 16-year-old son, Robert Stillwell, in which Mrs. Liming asserts that she testified as a state's witness at the Morrow and Malotte trials after her husband had been promised immunity from prosecution in connection with the robbery in which he was involved.

Lewis Liming, 38, near Osborn, was also sentenced to serve from one to seven years in the penitentiary when he changed his plea to guilty to a grand larceny charge. Mrs. Liming, in her affidavit, charged that Prosecuting Attorney Marcus McCallister and L. A. Davis, county road patrolman, visited her home after the Monnett robbery and told her that "if she would go on the witness stand and testify for the state, he (the prosecuting attorney) would see to it that her husband was released from the charge and would not have to serve any term for complicity in the robbery."

On the witness stand Mrs. Liming was said to have angrily denied the implication that her testimony had been influenced by a promise immunity for her husband, but in her signed affidavit she declares that "when asked about these things during the trials" she was "confused" and "did not understand" the questions put to her by F. L. Johnson, defense counsel.

Reference to the alleged promise of immunity had been made by Attorney Johnson in his original motions for new trials for Morrow and Malotte, but these motions had likewise been overruled by Judge Gowdy before passing sentence on the six men involved in the burglary.

Choose Your Laxative With Care

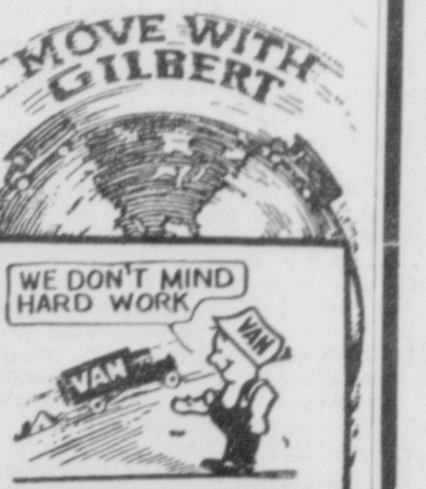

Don't choose haphazardly a pill, oil, gum, or candy confection. Don't choose a laxative merely as a means of daily evacuation. To its constancy of action, most laxatives are irritating to the intestines. Or they hurry food through the stomach, interfering with digestion. Or they fail to thoroughly clean.

Choose a laxative that cleans unflinchingly, soothes the system while it cleans. French Lick Salts is your safe choice because it cleans by washing. Gives prompt and gratifying results—cleans every nook and crevice of the intestinal tract. In addition, it's a valuable systemic regulator—it tones, regulates, causes harmonious functioning of all internal processes. You feel fine all over after taking French Lick Salts.

French Lick Salts is a blend of the same restorative salines found in the renowned waters at French Lick Springs. In cool water it effervesces merrily—is as pleasant-tasting as a fountain beverage. Take a little at least once each week and keep "regular," always. Do you want to reduce? Try the French Lick way—see coupon below. Today, at your druggist's, 36 cents.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Sorrow is better than laughter; for by the sadness of the countenance the heart is made better.—Ecclesiastes, vii, 3.

TROUBLE FROM WITHIN

The faction that is speaking for China in the peace negotiations at Shanghai seems bent upon destroying as much as possible of the foreign sympathy won by Chinese soldiers on the battlefield. The refusal of a Chinese "General" to negotiate with a Japanese Lieutenant-General, if it had not revealed so pathetic a childishness, would have been amusing to anyone familiar with conditions in China today. China has no army. Consequently there can be no real question of relative rank between men in Chinese uniforms and Japanese officers. Any number of "armies" have been tramping up and down China for the past 20 years, wasting its substance, slaughtering its people and keeping the whole country in a turmoil. A national army China has not.

As a matter of fact China has not even a Government that is entitled to speak for the 400,000,000 people it claims. The history of China since the ousting of the Manchus records just one "revolution" after another, a succession of armed assaults by the "outs" on the "ins." The vast majority of the people in China have had no more voice in the creation of the various "Governments" that have been set up in different parts of that country than the people of Salvador had in the formation of a Government our State Department declines to recognize. The "unification of China" that was fondly expected in some quarters to emerge from Japan's aggression against China has not developed. "Communists" are still ravaging Central China. Chiang Kai-shek is at odds with Canton. The South and the North won't speak to each other. The rich provinces of Manchuria have been lost to Japan by the execrable "government" which the Chinese factionaries tolerated there.

The danger at Shanghai is that pressure will be brought by ill-informed persons at home to bear on the investigators and negotiators to overlook these facts and deal with those who are for the moment "in" at Nanking, as if they represented the industrious millions of Chinese, whom, as a matter of fact, they have done their best to exploit. China is a country that deserves to be saved from itself. After 20 years out from under the Manchus it gives no evidence of producing leaders competent to save it from the rapacity of its own warlords and other politicians.

COFFEE AS BEVERAGE

American travelers should be pleased by the news that Great Britain has had an Imperial Committee at work investigating the subject of coffee as a beverage (sic) in the British Isles. The annual consumption of three-quarters of a pound of coffee per capita, as against nine and a quarter pounds of tea, "is a disparity to be remedied," according to the report of the Committee. That august body admitted that in most British homes coffee was too weak, and the ground bean used in preparing the drink was apt not to be very fresh.

A recipe for good coffee was suggested by the Committee. This, however, sounds like a survival of the British tea ceremony, since a "steeping method" involving the use of an earthenware jug, a wooden spoon and freshly boiled water is recommended.

With England teaching its subjects to "Buy British," one cannot quite place this fervent and studied attention to increased coffee drinking. Foreign trade is probably linked with it somewhere along the line. But possibly there is also a desire to lure American dollars by the promise of a really good cup of coffee. It is the little things in life that count; and coffee, together with the "American ice cream soda," in England has been execrable.

THROUGH EYES, MOSTLY

Oculists and optometrists should not have left it to us to point out the contention of a psychologist in a California university that human beings assimilate 65 per cent of their knowledge through their eyes. He adds that 25 per cent comes to us through the ears and only 10 per cent from the remaining three senses of touch, taste and smell.

One does not discount the importance of good eye-sight, nor the value of the testimony given by the eyes. For the average person the professor's percentages are probably correct, though in the case of a blind person the sense of touch grows more acute in compensation. The deaf person utilizes the sense of touch with a difference, in that the delicate nerve centers become trained to record vibrations which pass unnoticed by the normal individual.

Back of this allotment of value to the senses remains the function of spirit and brain which must turn the reported images of eye, ear, hand, tongue and nose to good account. Sixty-five per cent of one's knowledge may be assimilated through the eyes, yet the truth stands that there is "none so blind as those who will not see."

SHE IS RIGHT

The frank confession by Miss Rosa Ponselle that at 34 and at the height of a successful artistic career she desires a husband, home and children, and at times finds life strangely empty without those things, is genuinely refreshing; particularly so at this time when a type of "emancipated" woman, all too pitifully prevalent, is inclined to sneer at what the lady longs for, and see in them only "slavery" which prevents "freedom" and "equality" with the other sex.

Miss Ponselle possesses the sane, large and wholesome view; the truly emancipated one. In marriage and in the possession of children there need be no more forfeiture of individuality by a woman than by a man. Those things ought to be a fulfillment of life for both, not a handicap. It is mere common sense that real freedom, and real equality between the sexes are to be found in normal life not by resort to a state of existence that is a continual studied denial of things fundamental in human nature.

RESURRECTION POINTS TO ETERNITY

Dr. Jowett once illuminated our thoughts of death by speaking of it as a lease of a dwelling house. If we have a short lease, we are likely to become careless about the care of it, but if we have a long lease, we gladly make needed repairs because we think of its future.

Christ's resurrection gives us a long lease on life, a perpetual lease. This perpetual lease rids us of sorrow, for it sets before us ample time for recovery from grief and entrance into all joy. What if some rooms are empty now? They will be gloriously filled.

This perpetual lease bids us make all repairs, get rid of sin and doubt and failure, keep the house of our soul in beautiful order. The long lease gives us beautiful and glorious ambitions, inspires us to render higher service and fills us with abounding hope.

MY NEW YORK

By JAMES ASWELL

NEW YORK.—Marginalia of a Madhattanite:

O, to be an actor when spring is in the air! . . . Leslie Howard, star of the current stage hit, "The Animal Kingdom," has blithely announced to his potential customers that he won't play on Mondays any more — performances on those days always collide with his week-end plans! He'll give two shows on Thursdays, however, to stop any complaints at his nerve. . . . All of which has put ideas into my head. . . .

Wonder what the Central Press Association would say to no column on Mondays with, say, two on Thursdays? . . . And why not extend the plan to all manner of labor allowing an extra holiday to everybody on Monday with the understanding that they are to toll twice as diligently on Thursday? . . . Railroads could double the speed of their locomotives on the latter day and make crews happy. . . .

The chatter in radio control rooms and performers' lounges these days is mostly on the subject of the "morality clauses," which are said to be scheduled for all new contracts. . . . These anti-scandal riders have long been in force for flicker celebrities, but their introduction in the ether world brings up several interesting speculations. . . .

The truth is that neither sponsors nor studio execs know positively what the public thinks about the obligation of air idols to be good. . . . Would a page one scandal be as far as a dime? I am talking for a flicker luminary? Such flaccidities as have occurred offer little corroboration either way. The names of stars of the air which have been involved in unsavory publicity remain, my researchers tell me, popular in some cases and have faded in others, which proves nothing.

PROBLEM:

A delightfully fresh letter from a 17-year-old girl in Elmira, N. Y., raises a question in one paragraph which is more real in the skyscraper jungles than many realize. She says:

"I know that there are more places of amusement in New York than anywhere, but I don't believe that boys and girls in love always go to dance halls, etc. Where do they go walking? Or don't they?"

They shiver on the rear seats of Fifth Avenue buses. They wander, wistfully and a little despondently, through the parks past benches occupied by the permanently and temporarily unemployed. If they can raise a dime, I am talking about the millions now, not the few — they ride on subways, brazenly holding hands, finally oblivious to the ever-present eyes.

I begin to sound like a love-lorn column. Yet the virtually complete inability of two human beings to get away from the swarming strangers around them seems to be a tragedy more profound than most of the things which harass the mayor.

The duration of the life of the queen bee is rarely more than three years.

CHEER UP! WE'RE ALMOST THERE!

CONFLICT BETWEEN FARMER, FACTORY WORKER VIEWED AS HARMING BOTH

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—As the struggle to get back to good times develops itself, it becomes more and more evident that agriculture and industrial labor ought to cooperate and that they do not.

It looks as if they ought to combine against the middle man, who trims them both. The middle man does have his function, of course, as a purveyor of farm products to the city dweller and of urban labor's products to the farms. However, he manifestly has charged too much for his services, and to that extent can properly be regarded by both sides as an individual to be fought.

But there is no reason for conflict between the farmer and the factory worker. They surely should be able to get together, and, between them, they are the vast bulk of the population.

But look at them! The farmer desires cheaper money—that is, higher prices.

He wants it because he himself sells what he produces. The higher the price he gets for it, the more he receives in dollars and cents. And his cost of living does not increase proportionately. It increases somewhat, but not in respect to his big fixed charges—his taxes and interest and principle on his mortgage. He pays those in cash, to the same amount, whether the prices he receives are high or low. Most of what he eats he raises on his own land. The margin of necessities, for which he must pay more, is not large.

The city worker has to pay in actual bank notes and small change for everything he requires. If prices rise, his wage does not go so far—unless it is advanced proportionately.

Now, if money is cheapened, the farmer automatically gets more for his crops—that is, more reckoned in dollars and cents.

The wage worker's pay does not increase until he clamors for a higher rate, and maybe not then, for a long time. He does not take his handiwork to market, as the farmer does his crops. His products are marketed through an employer, who is likely to consider it to his advantage to keep his help's share at a minimum indefinitely, if he can—despite altruistic talk of the contrary.

Consequently the city working-man has good reason for hesitating when the farmer points to the necessity for price inflation, as he is doing now.

My observation has been that the city worker, if anything, is rather more thoughtful of the farmer in emergencies like the present than is the farmer of the city worker's interests.

Perhaps the city worker is not quite thoughtful enough. Nevertheless it is a fact that, from the very beginning of the depression of the last two and a half years, every responsible industrial labor leader in the country has emphasized the vital importance to his followers of lending every possible aid to agriculture toward the improvement of its lot.

Farm representatives in congress, on the other hand, began quietly, months ago, to dwell upon the necessity of a "deflation of labor" as a preliminary to prosperity's restoration.

A "deflation of labor"—industrial labor—unmistakably is what is in progress now.

Wages are coming down; prices

are about to go up.

I know there is a school of thought—not confined to farmers—which considers that labor was getting too much pay and that that was one of the things which brought on the depression. And possibly, for the time being, "labor's deflation" will tend to start the wheels turning again and increase employment—at lower pay than before.

But I doubt that it will prove to be a good thing in the end.

If there is an unfavorable ultimate reaction, agriculture will feel that, too. The two big groups—the farmers and industrial labor—do better for them if they did.

Fruit Whip—Fruit whips can be made of any fruit pulp of pronounced flavor and color. Heat the fruit pulp to dissolve the added sugar, and combine while hot with the stiffly beaten egg whites so as to cook the eggs partially and give body to the mixture. After the fruit pulp has been combined with the egg whites and sugar, the mixture may be baked in a dish surrounded by water in a very slow oven (225 degrees to 250 degrees F) for about one hour, the whip should not fall, and may be served either hot or cold. Or, fruit whips may be served as soon as mixed without cooking.

Poems That Live

THE PLEASURES OF LOVE
I do not care for kisses. 'Tis a debt we pay for the first privilege of love.

These are the rains of April which have wet Our fallow hearts and forced their germs to move. Now the green corn has sprouted. Each new day Brings better pleasures, a more dear surprise. The blade, the ear, the harvest—and our way Leads through a region wealthy grown and wise.

We now compare our fortunes. Each his store Displays to kindred eyes of garnered grain. Two happy farmers, learned in love's lore. Who weigh and touch and argue and complain—

Dear endless argument! Yet sometimes we Even as we argue kiss. There! Let it be.

Wilfrid Seaven Blunt (1840-1922)

Bees are named workers have bodies approximately half an inch in length and approximately one-sixth of an inch in greatest breadth, at the upper part of the abdomen.

Bees stand, in organization and intelligence and in social and constructive abilities, at the head of the whole insect tribe.

Bees exert an important influence upon the vegetable world by their services in the cross-fertilization of plants, some of which now depend wholly upon their cooperation for their existence.

The eggs of bees are of an oblong shape and bluish white color, approximately one-twelfth of an inch in length.

Directs Treatment

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Long ago, long before the war or the depression, when the millennium was here and we didn't know it, Dr. Metchnikoff, of the Pasteur Institute in Paris, made the announcement that in Bulgaria he had observed that there were an extraordinary number of old people. And he ascribed it to the fact that they drank a great deal of goat buttermilk; he found that this resulted in the implantation of a lactic-acid-forming germ in their large intestines, which he believed produced fewer poisons there and kept down the toxins which caused premature senility.

Naturally there was a great rush to implant Bacillus Bulgaricus in the colons of the non-Bulgarian inhabitants of the world. The only trouble was that it was found extraordinarily hard to do, especially on a mixed diet. The acid-forming bacilli could not be permanently implanted in most human intestines.

A few years ago another organism somewhat easier to implant, was discovered. It is called the Bacillus adophilus and is introduced into the body in acidophilus milk. It has been used with benefit by many intestinal invalids who find it reduces gas, bloating, cramps and promotes regular evacuations.

Large quantities of the milk are required in order to drive out the regular bacteria inhabiting the colon and supplant them with the bacillus adophilus. The number of organisms necessary for effective implantation is 200,000,000 per day. This number can be grown in a quart of milk. One or two quarts of milk a day at the beginning of treatment, then one quart a day for six months, is the proper method of administration.

Acidophilus milk is manufactured by one or two dairies in most cities now and can be obtained in many restaurants and at many soda fountains. It is pleasant in taste, not unlike buttermilk. Whether it will be beneficial in any individual case or not, it is certainly not harmful.

For those who believe that their health is being badly affected by the absorption of poisons from the intestines, a course of acidophilus milk certainly can be recommended.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

C. E. A.: "I would like to know what causes lordosis, and if there is a cure for it and if exercises help."

Answer: Lordosis is a curvature of the spine forward. In most cases it is evidenced in the lower part of the spine. The cause of lordosis in most instances is bad postural habit. There is seldom any actual disease of the spine itself. Sometimes it is the result of weakness in the muscles from infantile paralysis. It is possible by treatment to correct most cases of lordosis to the extent that they produce no disability. Exercises are among the most important methods in making corrections.

Wife Wins Hubby Back

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

To the women who write me that their husbands are unfaithful and their hearts are aching in consequence, this letter from one who went through the mill and conquered will bring comfort.

"Dear Miss Lee: After reading Sara L. K.'s letter, I am writing this. It may help her or other broken hearts. "I tried for 10 long years to make our home comfortable and peaceful. I have four children, now almost grown. Those 10 years seemed like 20, but I just could not give my husband and the father of my children to another woman, and it was a hard long fight to keep him when his heart was with some one else. But I was good and kind to him, never nagged or scolded although at times my heart bled. "But I stayed true, kept my house tidy, also myself and children, never complained no difference what happened. I loved him. I would cry myself to sleep after the children had gone to bed. I had to keep a brave heart before them, and my tears meant nothing to him. "Then one day, to my surprise, he took me in his arms and said, 'You are one of the finest women in this whole world.' I will feel that embrace as long as I live. He told me how much he had suffered and how many times he had wanted to tell me how he felt toward me. "Now our home is so happy. I had given up all hope but found so much comfort in my children. "So, Sara L. K., maybe your husband will see as mine did and maybe he wants to tell you that you are the finest woman in the world. So if you love him don't give up yet for he may love you best after all. "One Who Knows."

I wonder how many men are worth all those years of worry and heartache? Love is a wonderful thing, isn't it? I hope your husband spends the rest of his life trying to make up to you for all the agony he caused you. But you doubtless feel that your present happiness is worth all you suffered to obtain it. Thank you so much for writing.

Puzzled had a love affair some time ago and broke off with the young man. She started going with another chap but doesn't care for him and wants to quit going with him, but her parents think she should continue and should not go with other boys. She still loves this first boy, but cannot make up with him as he now is married.

She wants to go with other boys in the hope that she will eventually meet some one who will make her forget the first. Shall she do as her parents wish or as she wishes?

I agree with you that, as long as you cannot care for this boy you have been going with, it would be better to quit him and go with different ones.

Can you not argue your parents into agreeing to that? Try.

"Dear Virginia Lee: What 'Nipponese Blue Eyes' says of our girls is an insult to every girl in town and I hope they will find out who he is and boycott him. I know my girl wouldn't go out with him if I knew who he was.

"Only a Mother." I appreciate your feelings but think you are taking the young man too seriously. Personally I think he was only talking. He may be unfortunate in his associates; or possibly brought up in the wrong neighborhood.

Drink Milk, Keep Well

By GLADYS GLAD

Most adults have the idea that milk is mainly a child's food. And that's just where they're children themselves. For milk is as vitally important to the health of adults as it is to that of children.

In fact, our dieticians insist that every person young or old should drink at least one pint of milk a day for the protective minerals that it contains. "Thomas Edison," probably would not have lived to the ripe old age that he made milk a large part of his diet in his later years.

For the woman who desires to increase her weight especially, the generous consumption of milk is important. For whether you think so or not, if properly digested, one quart of milk taken every day for two months will cause an appreciable increase in poundage. Of course, this milk must be rich milk, to have the desired effect on a girl's figure, and not skimmed or watery milk.

If a pint or half-pint of cream is added to that daily quart of milk, the effect will be ever so much more gratifying.

Some women say that they cannot drink milk—that it does not agree with them. But, usually, there is some reason for this. If the milk is too cold, it will chill the stomach, and thus interfere with proper digestion. Again, if the milk is gulped down quickly and not sipped, it will form hard curds in the stomach. Milk is most easily digested when it is warm, and is sipped slowly.

If you think that milk tends to have a constipating effect on you, add some orange juice to it whenever you take it. The orange juice will help to overcome any such tendency. And if you don't like the taste of plain milk, there are many products on the market that flavor as well as increase the nutritive value of the milk.

A favorite drink in some of the European countries is a half and half mixture of ginger ale and milk. The ginger ale is said to make the milk more easily digested, and also flavors it deliciously.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Scars and Pits—M. P.: If the holes are merely enlarged pores, astringents and face masks will help to close them. If, however, they are actual scars and pits, a competent skin specialist's treatments will be necessary.

Legs—Peggy: You can indeed reduce your knees, calves and ankles. The full information is contained in my article on "Care of the Feet and Legs." It is too long to print in this brief space.

Editor's Note: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her, care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and ten cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling. For her articles on "Care of the Hands and Nails" and "Care of the Feet and Legs," two cents in coin for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope are required. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

SHE IS RIGHT

The frank confession by Miss Rosa Ponselle that at 34 and at the height of a successful artistic career she desires a husband, home and children, and at times finds life strangely empty without those things, is genuinely refreshing; particularly so at this time when a type of "emancipated" woman, all too pitifully prevalent, is inclined to sneer at what the lady longs for, and see in them only "slavery" which prevents "freedom" and "equality" with the other sex.

Miss Ponselle possesses the sane, large and wholesome view; the truly emancipated one. In marriage and in the possession of children there need be no more forfeiture of individuality by a woman than by a man. Those things ought to be a fulfillment of life for both, not a handicap. It is mere common sense that real freedom, and real equality between the sexes are to be found in normal life not by resort to a state of existence that is a continual studied denial of things fundamental in human nature.

RESURRECTION POINTS TO ETERNITY

Dr. Jowett once illuminated our thoughts of death by speaking of it as a lease of a dwelling house. If we have a short lease, we are likely to become careless about the care of it, but if we have a long lease, we gladly make needed repairs because we think of its future.

Christ's resurrection gives us a long lease on life, a perpetual lease. This perpetual lease rids us of sorrow, for it sets before us ample time for recovery from grief and entrance into all joy. What if some rooms are empty now? They will be gloriously filled.

This perpetual lease bids us make all repairs, get rid of sin and doubt and failure, keep the house of our soul in beautiful order. The long lease gives us beautiful and glorious ambitions, inspires us to render higher service and fills us with abounding hope.

MY NEW YORK

By JAMES ASWELL

NEW YORK.—Marginalia of a Madhattanite:
O, to be an actor when spring is in the air! ... Leslie Howard, star of the current stage hit, "The Animal Kingdom," has blithely announced to his potential customers that he won't play on Mondays any more — performances on those days always coincide with his week-end plans!

He'll give two shows on Thursdays, however, to stop any complaints at his nerve. ... All of which has put ideas into my head. ... Wonder what the Central Press Association would say to no column on Mondays with, say, two on Thursdays? ... And why not extend the plan to all manner of labor allowing an extra holiday to everybody on Monday with the understanding that they are to toll twice as diligently on Thursday? ... Railroads could double the speed of their locomotives on the latter day and make crews happy. ...

The chatter in radio control rooms and performers' lounges these days is mostly on the subject of the "morality clauses," which are said to be scheduled for all new contracts. ... These anti-scandal riders have long been in force for flicker celebrities, but their introduction in the ether world brings up several interesting speculations. ... The truth is that neither sponsors nor studio execs know positively what the public thinks about the obligation of air idols to be good. ... Would a page one scandal be as disastrous for a microphone star as for a flicker luminary? Such flaccid corroboration either way. The names of stars of the air which have been involved in unsavory publicity remain, my researchers tell me, popular in some cases and have faded in others, which proves nothing.

A delightful fresh letter from a 17-year-old girl in Edina, N. Y., raises a question in one paragraph which is more real in the skyscraper jungles than many realize. She says: "I know that there are more places of amusement in New York than anywhere, but I don't believe that boys and girls in love always go to dance halls, etc. Where do they go walking? Or don't they?"

They shiver on the rear seats of Fifth avenue buses. They wander, wistfully and a little despondently, through the parks past benches occupied by the permanently and temporarily unemployed. If they can raise a dime—I am talking about the millions now, not the few—they ride on subways, brazenly holding hands, finally oblivious to the ever-present eyes.

I begin to sound like a love-lorn column. Yet the virtually complete inability of two human beings to get away from the swarming strangers around them seems to be a tragedy more profound than most of the things which harass the mayor.

The duration of the life of the queen bee is rarely more than three years.

CONFLICT BETWEEN FARMER, FACTORY WORKER VIEWED AS HARMING BOTH

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—As the struggle to get back to good times develops itself, it becomes more and more evident that agriculture and industry labor ought to cooperate and that they do not.

It looks as if they ought to combine against the middle man, who trims them both. The middle man does have his function, of course, as a purveyor of farm products to the city dweller and of urban labor's products to the farms. However, he manifestly has charged too much for his services, and to that extent can properly be regarded by both sides as an individual to be fought.

But there is no reason for conflict between the farmer and the factory worker. They surely should be able to get together, and, between them, they are the vast bulk of the population.

But look at them! The farmer desires cheaper money—that is, higher prices. He wants to because he himself sells what he produces. The higher the price he gets for it, the more he receives in dollars and cents.

And his cost of living does not increase proportionately. It increases somewhat, but not in respect to his big fixed charges—his taxes and interest and principle on his mortgage. He pays those in cash, to the same amount, whether the prices he receives are high or low. Most of what he eats he raises on his own land. The margin of necessities, for which he must pay more, is not large.

The city worker has to pay in actual bank notes and small change for everything he requires. If prices rise, his wage does not go so far—unless it is advanced proportionately.

Now, if money is cheapened, the farmer automatically gets more for his crops—that is, more reckoned in dollars and cents.

The wage worker's pay does not increase until he clamors for a higher rate, and maybe not then, for a long time. He does not take his handwork to market, as the farmer does his crops. His products are marketed through an employer, who is likely to consider it to his advantage to keep his help's share at a minimum indefinitely, if he can—despite altruistic talk of the contrary.

Consequently the city working-man has good reason for hesitating when the farmer points to the necessity for price inflation, as he is doing now.

My observation has been that the city worker, if anything, is rather more thoughtful of the farmer in emergencies like the present than is the farmer of the city worker's interests.

Perhaps the city worker is not quite thoughtful enough. Nevertheless it is a fact that, from the very beginning of the depression of the last two and a half years, every responsible industrial labor leader in the country has emphasized the vital importance to his followers of lending every possible aid to agriculture toward the improvement of its lot.

Farm representatives in congress, on the other hand, began quietly, months ago, to dwell upon the necessity of a "deflation of labor" as a preliminary to prosperity's restoration.

A "deflation of labor"—industrial labor—unmistakably is what is in progress now.

Wages are coming down; prices

are about to go up.

I know there is a school of thought—not confined to farmers—which considers that labor was getting too much pay and that that was one of the things which brought on the depression. And, possibly, for the time being, "labor's deflation" will tend to start the wheels turning again and increase employment—at lower pay than before.

But I doubt that it will prove to be a good thing in the end. If there is an unfavorable ultimate reaction, agriculture will feel that, too. The two big groups—the farmers and industrial labor—do better for them if they did.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Fruit Whip—Fruit whips can be made of any fruit pulp of pronounced flavor and color. Heat the fruit pulp to dissolve the added sugar, and combine while hot with the stiffly beaten egg whites so as to cook the eggs partially and give body to the mixture. After the fruit pulp has been combined with the egg whites and sugar, the mixture may be baked in a desired shape. When baked in a dish surrounded by water in a very slow oven (225 degrees to 250 degrees F.) for about one hour, the whip should not fall, and may be served either hot or cold. Or fruit whips may be served as soon as mixed without cooking.

Poems That Live

THE PLEASURES OF LOVE
I do not care for kisses. 'Tis a debt we paid for the first privilege of love.

These are the rains of April which have wet
Our fallow hearts and forced their germs to move.
Now the green corn has sprouted.
Each new day
Brings better pleasures, a more dear surprise.
The blade, the ear, the harvest—and our way
Leads through a region wealthy grown and wise.
We now compare our fortunes.
Each his store
Displays to kindred eyes of garnered grain.
Two happy farmers, learned in love's lore.
Who weigh and touch and argue and complain—
Dear endless argument! Yet sometimes we Even as we argue kiss. There! Let it be.
Wilfrid Seawen Blunt (1840-1922)

Bees that are named workers have bodies approximately half an inch in length and approximately one-sixth of an inch in greatest breadth, at the upper part of the abdomen.

Bees stand, in organization and intelligence and in social and constructive abilities, at the head of the whole insect tribe.

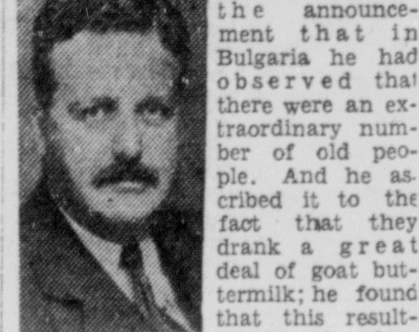

Bees exert an important influence upon the vegetable world by their services in the cross-fertilization of plants, some of which now depend wholly upon their co-operation for their existence.

The eggs of bees are of an oblong shape and bluish white color, approximately one-twelfth of an inch in length.

Directs Treatment

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Long ago, long before the war or the depression, when the milkenium was here and we didn't know it, Dr. Metchnikoff, of the Pasteur Institute in Paris, made the announcement that in Bulgaria he had observed that there were an extraordinary number of old people. And he ascribed it to the fact that they drank a great deal of goat buttermilk. He found that this resulted in the implantation of a lactic-acid-forming germ in their large intestines, which he believed produced fewer poisons there and kept down the toxins which caused premature senility.

Dr. Clending

Naturally there was a great rush to implant Bacillus Bulgaricus in the colons of the non-Bulgarian inhabitants of the world. The only trouble was that it was found extraordinarily hard to do, especially on a mixed diet. The acid-forming bacilli could not be permanently implanted in most human intestines.

A few years ago another organism somewhat easier to implant, was discovered. It is called the Bacillus acidophilus and is introduced into the body in acidophilus milk. It has been used with benefit by many intestinal invalids who find it relieves gas, bloating, cramps and promotes regular evacuations.

Large quantities of the milk are required in order to drive out the regular bacteria inhabiting the colon and supplant them with the bacillus acidophilus. The number of organisms necessary for effective implantation is 200,000,000 per day. This number can be grown in a quart of milk. One or two quarts of milk a day at the beginning of treatment, then one quart a day for six months, is the proper method of administration.

Acidophilus milk is manufactured by one or two dairies in most cities now and can be obtained in many restaurants and at many soda fountains. It is pleasant in taste, not unlike buttermilk. Whether it will be beneficial in any individual case or not, it is certainly not harmful.

For those who believe that their health is being badly affected by the absorption of poisons from the intestines, a course of acidophilus milk certainly can be recommended.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS
C. E. A.: "I would like to know what causes lordosis, and if there is a cure for it and if exercises help."

Answer: Lordosis is a curvature of the spine forward. The most cases it is evidenced in the lower part of the spine. The cause of lordosis in most instances is bad postural habit. There is seldom any actual disease of the spine itself. Sometimes it is the result of weakness in the muscles from infantile paralysis. It is possible by treatment to correct most cases of lordosis to the extent that they produce no disability. Exercises are among the most important methods in making corrections.

Wife Wins Hubby Back

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

To the women who write me that their husbands are unfaithful and their hearts are aching in consequence, this letter from one who went through the same trial and conquered will bring comfort.

"Dear Miss Lee: After reading Sara L. K.'s letter I am writing this. It may help her or other broken hearts."
I tried for 10 long years to make our home comfortable and peaceful. I have four children, now almost grown. Those 10 years seemed like 20, but I just could not give my husband and the father of my children to another woman, and it was a hard long fight to keep him when his heart was with some one else. But I was good and kind to him, never nagged or scolded although at times my heart bled.

"But I stayed true, kept my house tidy, also myself and children, never complained no difference what happened. I loved him. I would cry myself to sleep after the children had gone to bed. I had to keep a brave heart before them, and my tears meant nothing to him."

"Then one day, to my surprise, he took me in his arms and said, 'You are one of the finest women in this whole world.' I will feel that embrace as long as I live. He told me how much he had suffered and how many times he had wanted to tell me how he felt toward me."

"Now our home is so happy. I had given up all hope but found so much comfort in my children."

"So, Sara L. K., maybe your husband will see as mine did and maybe he wants to tell you that you are the finest woman in the world. So if you love him don't give up yet for he may love you best after all.

"One Who Knows."

I wonder how many men are worth all these years of worry and heartache? Love is a wonderful thing, isn't it? I hope your husband makes up to you for all the agony he caused you. But you doubtless feel that your present happiness is worth all you suffered to obtain it. Thank you so much for writing.

Puzzled had a love affair some time ago and broke off with the young man. She started going with another chap but doesn't care for him and wants to quit going with him, but her parents think she should continue and should not go with other boys. She still loves this first boy, but cannot make up with him as he now is married.

She wants to go with other boys in the hope that she will eventually meet some one who will make her forget the first. Shall she do as her parents wish or as she wishes?

I agree with you that, as long as you cannot care for this boy, you have been going with, it would be better to quit him and go with different ones.

Can you not argue your parents into agreeing to that? Try.

"Dear Virginia Lee: What 'Nipponese Blue Eyes' says of our girls is an insult to every girl in town and I hope they will find out who he is and boycott him. I know my girl wouldn't go out with him if I knew who he was."

"Only a Mother." I appreciate your feelings but think you are taking the young man too seriously. Personally I think he was only talking. He may be unfortunate in his associates; or possibly brought up in the wrong neighborhood.

Drink Milk, Keep Well

By GLADYS GLAD

Most adults have the idea that milk is mainly a child's food. And that's just where they're children themselves. For milk is as vitally important to the health of adults as it is to that of children.

In fact, our dieticians insist that every person young or old should drink at least one pint of milk a day for its minerals that contain. Thomas Edison probably would not have lived to the ripe old age that he did, had he not made milk a large part of his diet in his later years.

For the woman who desires to increase her weight especially, the generous consumption of milk is important. For whether you think so or not, if properly digested, one quart of milk taken every day for two months will cause an appreciable increase in pounds. Of course, this milk must be rich milk, to have the desired effect on a girl's figure, and not skimmed or watery milk.

If a pint or half-pint of cream is added to that daily quart of milk, the effect will be ever so much more gratifying.

Some women say that they cannot drink milk—that it does not agree with them. But, usually, there is some reason for this. If the milk is too cold, it will chill the stomach, and thus interfere with proper digestion. Again, if the milk is gulped down quickly and not sipped, it will form curds in the stomach. Milk is most easily digested when it is warm, and is sipped slowly.

If you think that milk tends to have a constipating effect on you, add some orange juice to it whenever you take it. The orange juice will help to overcome any such tendency. And if you don't like the taste of plain milk, there are many products on the market that flavor as well as increase the nutritive value of the milk.

A favorite drink in some of the European countries is a half and half mixture of ginger ale and milk. The ginger ale is said to make the milk more easily digested, and also flavors it deliciously.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED

Personnel of the triumvirate that for the last two seasons has directed the destinies of softball in Xenia may undergo one change at the annual reorganization meeting of the Xenia Playground Association Friday night.

It is whispered about that Paul Turnbull, round vice-president of the organization and a member of the Softball Commission, intends to retire voluntarily but none the less firmly from the office, unless he can be prevailed upon to reconsider and accept re-election.

As for the other two commissioners, Walker Gibney, president, and Earl Bowtell, secretary-treasurer, they can probably be persuaded to continue in office, once more assuming the trials and tribulations that go hand in hand with governing the summer pastime.

One of the immediate projects, preliminary to the opening of the softball season, will be to recondition the Cox Field ball diamond, which is full of ruts and resembles anything but a diamond. This will be the initial expense for which funds must be procured. The diamond will have to be plowed up and rolled and allowed to settle under spring rains before it will be transformed into first-class shape. Now is the time to get this work started.

Miamisburg High School athletic teams will henceforth be called the "Vikings" for no other reason than the fact this nickname was selected by the school. "Moundbuilders" had also been suggested and then discarded, for which headline writers breathe a sigh of gratitude. No longer will the Miamisburg teams be called "Burgers" for short.

It would be great if all the seven member schools in the Miami Valley League could be identified by official nicknames. Maybe, though, all of them are and this department is unaware of it. Miamisburg has its "Vikings," while Xenia teams are known as the "Buccaneers," and Piqua as the "Indians." Sidney teams are known variously as the "Yellow Jacks" and "Robinson's Railroaders." We seem to link Dayton Fairview with "Dragons," but no nicknames for Troy or Greenville come to mind.

Cedarville College will open its baseball schedule against the strongest college nine it will face all season, playing Miami University, four-time champion of the Buckeye Conference, April 16 at Oxford, O., the first home game for Miami. Pitcher Preston Garlough, veteran Cedarville right-hander, will probably get the mound assignment.

Fulton Patterson, 13-year-old son of Dr. and Mrs. Austin Patterson, this city, is now a full-fledged fisherman.

The Patterson family is at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Dr. Patterson writes that his son had the thrill of his life the other day when he landed a 300-pound sand shark measuring more than eight feet in length. Here is how the father explains the incident:

"He stuck to the big fish for half an hour and got it close to the boat when Captain George Chapman, of the 'White Squall,' shot it in the head with a .45 soft-nose bullet, and the rest was comparatively easy."

A second shark, nearly as large, was also captured by Dr. Patterson and Harry Fisher, Batavia, N. Y. The party, which also included Miss Ethelyn Fisher, Mrs. Patterson and her young daughter, Nancy Patterson, was trolling in the Great Stream for sailfish when the shark began to race after the bait. They were caught with ordinary rods and reels and ninety-pound test lines, which Dr. Patterson says is considered a little unusual.

The captain stated that Fulton is the youngest boy who had ever landed a shark in one of his boats. The next largest fish caught was a twenty-pound kingfish by Miss Fisher. The party celebrated the prized captures with a fish dinner, but whether shark meat was the principal item on the menu was not mentioned.

the architect, the contractor should not be required to take the drastic step of tearing down all the standing walls if they are safe, the ruling sets forth. The determination of the dispute, it is explained in this connection, in no wise would preclude the school board recovering in civil damages a sum representative of what it had lost by failure of the contractor to observe his contract to follow the plans and specifications.

"We believe that the test which was made over three of the steel joists bearing upon the walls in controversy fairly disclosed that the walls under these three joists were safe," the judges said. "The total load applied was 15,400 pounds and the load per square foot on the wall under the joist was 143 pounds. This is greatly in excess of any load that will in any probability ever be placed upon them."

"We have therefore concluded that if this test is applied to all the joists with the twenty-three foot span, twenty-three and one-half inches apart from center to center, and a like comparative test applied to the other joists with less span on the second floor, with no evidence of weakening or breaking down of the walls under the tests, that they may be considered safe."

"This test should be made as the first one was conducted over three joists at a time, taking them in succession, extending the full length of the span."

"We do not require as a part of this test, as in the one conducted, men shall stand upon the blocks, because obviously it would be dangerous if any of the joists would fail."

The plaintiffs in the case, the court says, have permission to have a representative present at the test. It is suggested that Prof. Joseph N. Bradford, for many years head of the department of architecture at Ohio State University, be employed in this capacity to check the walls and to report any weakness which may develop in them. If any. The cost of Prof. Bradford's services would be taxed in the present litigation. The university professor testified during the trial as one of twenty witnesses subpoenaed by the plaintiff.

On the subject of the materials to be used in the construction of the walls yet remaining to be erected, the decree of the appellate court provides, it desired by the plaintiff, that the specifications as interpreted by the appeals court shall be followed, and that load bearing walls be built of a "good, sound quality of common brick."

Construction work on the school was halted last December 2 under an injunction allowed by Common Pleas Judge L. J. Gandy. The injunction was issued following trial of a suit brought by Irven M. Coy, taxpayer of the school district, on behalf of himself and other taxpayers, charging the contractor had violated the contract, had cheapened the construction by use of inferior materials and that the structure was being made unsafe for occupancy.

The trial court, in deciding in favor of the plaintiff, had ordered the load bearing walls reconstructed in exact accordance with the specifications.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED
by Phil

Personnel of the triumvirate for the last two seasons has directed the destinies of softball in Xenia may undergo one change at the annual reorganization meeting of the Xenia Playground Association Friday night.

It is whispered about that Paul Turnbull, round vice-president of the organization and a member of the Softball Commission, intends to retire voluntarily but none the less firmly from the office, unless he can be prevailed upon to reconsider and accept re-election.

As for the other two commissioners, Walker Gibney, president, and Earl Boxwell, secretary-treasurer, they can probably be persuaded to continue in office, once more assuming the trials and tribulations that go hand in hand with governing the summer pastime.

One of the immediate projects, preliminary to the opening of the softball season, will be to reconstitute the Cox Field ball diamond, which is full of ruts and resembles anything but a diamond. This will be the initial expense for which funds must be procured. The diamond will have to be plowed up and rolled and allowed to settle under spring rains before it will be transformed into first-class shape. Now is the time to get this work started.

Miamisburg High School athletic teams will henceforth be called the "Vikings" for no other reason than the fact this nickname was selected by the school. "Moundbuilders" had also been suggested and then discarded, for which headline writers breathed a sigh of gratitude. No longer will the Miamisburg teams be called "Burgers" for short.

It would be great if all the seven member schools in the Miami Valley League could be identified by official nicknames. Maybe, though, all of them are and this department is unaware of it. Miamisburg has its "Vikings," while Xenia teams are known as the "Buccaneers," and Piqua as the "Indians." Sidney teams are known variously as the "Yellow Jackets" and "Robinson's Raiders." We seem to link Dayton Fairview with "Dragons," but no nicknames for Troy or Greenville come to mind.

Cedarville College will open its baseball schedule against the strongest college nine it will face all season, playing Miami University, four-time champion of the Buckeye Conference, April 16 at Oxford, O., the first home game for Miami. Mitchel Preston Garlock, veteran Cedarville right-hander, will probably get the mound assignment.

Fulton Patterson, 13-year-old son of Dr. and Mrs. Austin Patterson, this city, is now a full-fledged fisherman.

The Patterson family is at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Dr. Patterson writes that his son had the thrill of his life the other day when he landed a 300-pound sand shark measuring more than eight feet in length. Here is how the father explains the incident:

"He stuck to the big fish for half an hour and got it close to the boat when Captain George Chapman, of the 'White Squall,' shot it in the head with a .45 shot-no bullet, and the rest was comparatively easy."

A second shark, nearly as large, was also captured by Dr. Patterson and Harry Fisher, Bates, N. Y. The party, which also included Miss Ethelva Fisher, included Patterson's young daughter, Nancy Patterson, was trolling in the Gulf Stream for sailfish when the pair of sharks began to race after the bait. They were caught with ordinary rods and reels and ninety-pound test lines, which Dr. Patterson says is considered a little unusual.

The captain stated that Fulton is the youngest boy who has ever landed a shark in one of his boats. The next largest fish caught was a twenty-pound kingfish by Miss Fisher. The party celebrated the prized captures with a fish dinner, but whether shark meat was the principal item on the menu was not mentioned.

Howard Donley amassed a 629 individual series for the winners and "Batter" Peterson topped the Autos with 553. Box score:

Critics Like To Play Revived Barrie Play

Sir James Barrie may not have done a great play when he wrote "Alice Sit-by-the-Fire" but this brief bit of drama seems to have enough spirit to make controversy among the critics, some of whom admire it while others play it roundly. Alexander Woolcott is reminded she has played enough foreign heroines. She was a Mexican girl in "The Dove" and will be an island beauty in "The Bird of Paradise" but in her new story, which Adela Rogers Hyland and Gene Fowler will write, she will have an opportunity to show that really vivid personality which attracts so much attention in Hollywood. She has had only one role of that type—a siren part in an early Dorothy Mackaill film.

The "Alice" piece is part of the production that William A. Brady is pleased to call "A Night With Barrie", the other opus being that grand old bit, "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals", which was a Xenia Little Theater vehicle here not long ago.

Gentlemen and the Marx Brothers prefer blondes, with the result that Thelma Todd, who played in their last comedy, will repeat in "Horsefeathers", now being filmed in secrecy by Paramount. Visitors are barred from the lot.

The "Alice" opus first saw the light of incandescents in the dark era of 1905 but became better known after its revival in 1912 by Ethel Barrymore. It is rather clumsy drama, as even its friends may admit, and perhaps its only charm is elicited from the acting with which it is clothed, in the present case by the charming Miss Taylor. Even Dimond admits that "if you watch her glide through the play, lyrical, alert and ever intelligent—if you let the 'sound take care of the sense', you may get some enjoyment out of this basically sterile 'Evening With Barrie'."

"The Old Lady Shows Her Medals" is a war-time story, originally done in 1917 in splendid fashion by Beryl Mercer. Miss Taylor takes the part of the London charwoman with a superb mixture of defiant comic spirit and almost mute pathos.

After "The Bird of Paradise", screen fans are going to see Dolores Del Rio in a modern story with an American background, which should bring some measure of relief both to the screen fans and to Miss Del Rio.

Critics Like To Play Revived Barrie Play

Sir James Barrie may not have done a great play when he wrote "Alice Sit-by-the-Fire" but this brief bit of drama seems to have enough spirit to make controversy among the critics, some of whom admire it while others play it roundly. Alexander Woolcott is reminded of cabbages and kings and many other things, and, mellowed by the spirit of reminiscence, writes sweetly of Alice as revived this year by Laurette Taylor. And Bushnell Dimond scores Barrie bitterly for ever giving it issue and Miss Taylor only slightly less harshly for ill-advice in producing it.

The "Alice" piece is part of the production that William A. Brady

Gentlemen, and the Marx Brothers prefer blondes, with the result that Thelma Todd, who played in their last comedy, will repeat in "Horsefeathers", now being filmed in secrecy by Paramount. Visitors are barred from the lot.

LEGION AUXILIARY
GIVES CHILDREN OF
HOME EASTER TREAT

Easter Sunday was a particularly enjoyable occasion for children of the O. S. and S. O. Home, who were provided a special Easter treat by the women's auxiliary of the Ohio department of the American Legion, and auxiliaries of other state patriotic societies.

When the boys and girls seated themselves at the breakfast tables arranged in four different dining rooms, they found at each place bright-colored balloons and a half-pound box of candy filled with colored Easter eggs with chocolate-coated candy rabbits perched atop each box.

Other organizations sent special treats of baskets of candy eggs and artificial chicks that were distributed to the youngest children at the cottages in the evening. Each of the older children received a marshmallow rabbit at the supper table Sunday evening and one auxiliary sent a large number of wooden Easter toys which were placed on the tables and one presented to each of the smaller boys and girls. Tables in the main dining room were decorated with flowers from the Home greenhouse and at one end of the room hung a large electrically-lighted cross.

Mrs. V. A. Conrad, Lancaster, O., member of the state child welfare committee of the American Legion, was chairman in charge of the Legion auxiliary's treat for the children, and she was assisted by her husband, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Wright and Mr. and Mrs. James Nichols, all of Lancaster.

A special Easter cantata, describing in song the resurrection of the Savior, was presented at chapel services at 8:30 o'clock Sunday morning by the combined boys' and girls' glee clubs of the Home under the direction of Mrs. Rose Byers, vocal instructor.

PERMIT TO CONDUCT
PUBLIC DANCES IS
REFUSED BY COURT

After hearing protests voiced by spokesmen for a large group of residents of the community who thronged the court room, Tuesday afternoon, Probate Judge S. C. Wright denied the application of Ray Gerard and Aftel Bowermaster for a permit to conduct public dances on Friday nights each week at the Ervin school house in Jefferson Twp.

Hearing of the application of A. R. Jones for a permit to legalize public dances at the Maple Corner dance hall in Caesar Creek Twp., also assigned for Tuesday afternoon, was continued until 1:30 p. m. April 4.

Numerous objections were raised at the hearing to the granting of a permit for sponsoring public dances at the school house near Powersville, neighbors in the community arguing that roads in the vicinity were blocked by parked autos and that public dances had a bad effect on the young people.

Although declaring he was not personally opposed to dancing, Judge Wright declared that public dances are against public policy. It had been his custom to issue permits unless protests were filed, but heretofore few complaints had been made, he said. The judge said he thought private dances or those of a semi-public nature are all right. The protests were not against the applicants seeking the permit, he added.

EVEN AUTO EDITORS GUESSED $130 TOO HIGH!

● "Gentlemen... here is the new DeSoto. Examine it from top to bottom. From bumper to bumper. Guess the price and write it down."

Those motor car experts knew their business. They had seen hundreds of new cars before. They knew values. So they looked at... and examined... and guessed. Imagine it! Their guesses averaged exactly $130 too much!

By every standard of judgment these editors were right. By every test you can name the new DeSoto belongs in a higher price-class. By its beauty. Its lines. Its mechanical features. Its smallest detail.

It isn't just a bargain. It's a complete upset of the old price classes. It means that beauty... sophistication... style... are no longer costly luxuries.

It means the thrill of Floating Power... the ease of an Automatic Clutch... the safety of all-steel bodies and hydraulic brakes... with an economy price tag. Come and see it for yourself.

Kelvinator Reduces Prices

Now the Lowest Prices in all the 18 years of Kelvinator History

Here IS NEWS! Good news for the 1,000,000 women who will invest in electric refrigerators in 1932. Kelvinator announces reductions on all its 17 new Models—big reductions—all the way up to $100—bringing the prices down to the lowest point in Kelvinator's 18 years in the industry.

These are not special Models brought out for "bargain sale" purposes, but the 17 Models of the regular 1932 Kelvinator line, first offered to the public less than 45 days ago. They are Kelvinators—of Kelvinator quality all the way through—the product of the longest experience in the industry.

Now, there is no reason why you should have to be satisfied with anything but a Kelvinator!

With this substantial reduction, and on the ReDisCo Monthly Budget Plan, the cost of a Kelvinator is so low that the purchase can now be made without materially affecting your budget.

The new low prices—the lowest in Kelvinator history—are now in effect. Come in and let us show you the big saving you can now make. Let us show you the fully automatic Standard and DeLux Models and explain why they are the only fully automatic electric refrigerators built—with four zones of cold, each automatically controlled, without any dials to set.

See the low-priced "K" Model—the biggest value in the low-priced field.
